Programme Specific Outcomes

The PG Programme in Political Science is interdisciplinary and research-oriented in nature. It is based on the following Programme Specific Outcomes (PSOs):-

PSO-1: Comprehensive Knowledge of the Discipline

Programme will assist the students to exhibit a comprehensive understanding and in-depth knowledge with a strong grasp of foundational concepts and theoretical frameworks in the diverse areas of Political Science. They will study various subjects including Political Theory, Indian and Western Political Thought, International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Administration, and Indian Political System of India and Politics of Jammu & Kashmir. The diverse coverage in the programme will provide learners with an academic rigor and intellectual foundation necessary to excel in both academic and applied settings.

PSO-2: Critical and Analytical Thinking

The programme will develop critical thinking and analytical skills among the students, enabling them to interpret the political phenomena critically. These skills will prepare the students to objectively examine the existing political debates and reforms, deconstruct the theoretical paradigms and their practical relevance and also evaluate governmental policies, programmes, governance structures, electoral systems, and international problems with objectivity and ethical sensitivity. In this way, they will be capable of making independent judgments and devise the innovative solutions to complex political problems.

PSO-3: Research Expertise and Methodological Soundness

Students will obtain advanced research skills and ethical orientation which are essential for scientific inquiry of different research problems in the field of Political Science. They will be prepared to design research studies, collect and interpret data, and contribute to academic and policy-oriented knowledge. They will also be taught to conduct research projects using qualitative and quantitative methodologies and engage in evidence-based analysis. With the development of strong methodological skills among the students, they will be capable of analyzing political systems, institutions, and processes with a contextual and comparative perspective, especially focusing on South Asia, India's extended neighbourhood and near abroad.

PSO-4: Interdisciplinary and Global Perspectives

Students will gain exposure to interdisciplinary approaches through elective and SWAYAM/MOOC courses. This will enhance their ability to understand the Political Science beyond the core discipline and encourage them to apply the diverse lenses such as economics, sociology, law, and international studies in political analysis. The interdisciplinary approach help will assist the students to understand the local, national and global political structures.

PSO-5: Political Communication and Employability Skills

The inclusion of vocational course focusing on public affairs and political reporting ensure that students will gain practical communication skills relevant to media and journalism, policy advocacy and public communication along with the civic education and democratic participation. This will equip the students for making significant contribution to the public sphere.

PSO-6: Democratic Values and Civic Responsibility

This programme will nurture the values of democracy, justice, human rights, pluralism, and ethical citizenship among the students. Students will be sensitized to various issues including of social justice, governance, and constitutional values, and rights and duties of the citizenship particularly in the context of the Indian Union and Jammu & Kashmir.

PSO-7: Technological and Digital Expertise

Students will be trained to engage with digital tools for academic and professional work. They will learn about the online learning platforms, research databases, and data visualization tools and techniques, which is in accordance to the goals of National Education Policy-2020 (NEP-2020), to integrate technology in higher education.

PSO-8: Professionalism, Ethics, and Employability

The programme will also instill values of academic integrity, ethical reasoning, and professional conduct among students. This will not only make the students knowledgeable but also responsible and committed to public service. Thus, through this programme, students will be trained for diverse career paths including union and state public civil services and other roles in the government; academia and research institutions; journalism and media; non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and international organizations (IGOs); and policy think tanks in India and abroad.

Course Structure

The course structure of Two PG programme includes four types of courses – (i) Core/Compulsory; (ii) Elective/Optional; (iii) SWAYAM/MOOC, and; (iv) Vocational. The Core/compulsory courses are the basic courses of the programme and are mandatory for all the students to become eligible to earn a degree/diploma in the given programme. Elective Courses provide choice to the students to seek specialized knowledge of the different areas of the subject. SWAYAM/MOOC Course of four credits is mandatory for the students of two years PG programme. Students can register for the SWAYAM/MOOC in December/January of First Year of the MDP for Two Years PG Programme. Credits earned by the students in the SWAYAM/MOOC course will be credited in the third semester. Vocational course is mandatory for those students who intend to exit after end of Second Semester of the two years PG Programme and desire to obtain the diploma of completion of first year. Vocational course shall be held during the summer term.

Title – International Relations: Theory and Practice (Core)

Credits: 4 (Four)

Max. Marks: 100

Minor Tests: 20 + 20 = 40

Major Exam.: 60

Objectives of Course: This course is designed to develop the understanding of evolution of international relations by examining key historical events such as the World Wars, the Cold War, and the post-Cold War global structure, and to explore the emergence and transformation of the discipline through major debates and the increasing influence of non-state actors. This course also aims to familiarize students with major theoretical frameworks in international relations, encompassing both Western and non-Western perspectives, and to develop critical thinking skills through the application of these theories to global political dynamics and international events. Besides, another objective of this course is to equip students with analytical tools to understand the instruments and strategies of international relations, including national power, balance of power, security concepts, and geopolitical theories, enabling them to interpret both historical and contemporary international conflicts. This will also assist the students to engage students with pressing contemporary global issues, such as multilateralism, terrorism, human rights, environmental politics, and the strategic role of the Global South, fostering the ability to assess current developments within a broader global order framework.

Learning Outcomes: This course will equip the learners with skills to understand and analyze the nature of world power structure evolved over the period of time. Students will be able to critically analyze the historical evolution of international relations, assess the impact of major global conflicts on the international system, and evaluate the roles of both state and non-state actors in shaping the discipline and its core debates. Students will be able to compare and contrast the key Western and non-Western theoretical approaches in international relations, and apply these frameworks to interpret global political phenomena and power dynamics. This will also assist the students to explain and evaluate the core instruments and strategic concepts in international relations, including power, security, and geopolitics, and apply them to analyze both traditional and emerging global conflicts. Moreover, students will gain the capacity to assess contemporary global challenges — such as terrorism, human rights, environmental politics, and North-South relations within the context of evolving world order and the role of the Global South.

Students will be evaluated continuously on the basis of their performance in the three stages of exams:-

Minor-I and II Exams (Stage-I and II)

The first stage evaluation (First Minor Test) will be done after the completion of 25% syllabus after the 30 days of the beginning of teaching work in the semester. The duration of the test will be of 1 hour and it will carry 20 marks. The second stage evaluation (Second Minor Test) will be based on the next 25% syllabus after the 60 days from the beginning of teaching work in the semester. The duration of the test will be of 1 hour and it will carry 20 marks. The Objective Test of Minor-I and Minor-II will be conducted through LMS portal based on ten compulsory multiple choice questions (having minimum two questions from each sub-unit of the syllabus allocated for Minor-I and Minor-II tests) containing total ten marks in each stage of exams. The Subjective Test of Minor-I and Minor-II would consist of four short answer type questions each carrying 5 marks. Students are required to answer two questions. The upper word limit for the answer of each question will be 250-300 words. No preparatory holidays shall be given during the Minor-I and Minor-II exams. Those candidates who have appeared in Minor-I and Minor-II and failed to get the minimum required marks i.e. 14 out of 40 will be eligible to re-appear in the Minor-I and Minor-II only once.

Major Test/Exam (Stage-III)

The stage three evaluation (Major Test) will be based on the entire syllabus and duration of the examination will be 3 hours. It will carry 60 marks. It will be held after the 90 days from the beginning of teaching work in the semester. The question paper for this test will be divided into two sections. The First Section, i.e., Section-A will be spread over the entire syllabus and will consist of ten short answers type compulsory questions containing minimum two questions from each unit. Each question will carry 3 marks and the upper word limit for the answer will be 150 words. The Second Section, i.e., Section-B will consist of four long answer type questions and will be spread over the remaining 50% syllabus (i.e., Unit-III and IV of the syllabus and containing two questions from each unit). The candidates are required to attempt two questions on the basis of within-unit choice. The upper word limit for the answer of each question will be 850-1000 words. Each question will carry 15 marks. In major test there should not be a gap of more than two days in between two tests.

Objectives of Course: This course introduces students of different approaches and conceptual frameworks to approach politics in a comparative perspective. It underlines the significance of understanding how and why the comparisons are made. The course explores the commonalities and differences in the politics of nation-states across the world by deploying different analytical and conceptual tools. It intends to equip the learners with theoretical tools to compare and contrast political structures and processes apart from explaining the process of structural differentiation across the world. It educates the learners that political structures and processes are dynamic as they have always been negotiating with the evolving objective realities within the nations-states throughout the world.

Learning Outcomes: While studying this course, the learners will learn about debates on the conceptual framework and theoretical perspectives in the domain of comparative politics. They will learn to use the comparative method to compare the changes in political structures, processes, regimes and ideologies which have been taking place in the perennial way across the nation-states. It will equip the learners with theoretical knowledge and analytical tools to study politics comparatively by comparing and contrasting political phenomena across the world.

Title-India's Foreign Policy (Core)

Credits: 4 (Four)

Minor Tests: 20 + 20 = 40

Max. Marks: 100

Major Exam.: 60

Objectives of Course: This course is framed to enable the learners to comprehend the way India situated itself in the comity of nation-states after independence when the international scenario was highly acrimonious and polarized. Another objective is to make students understand the way India has been adjusting to the highly dynamic world by calibrating its world view accordingly. It elucidates the way India has established and steered its relations with major players at the bilateral, regional and global formats. This course explores the role of constantly evolving internal and external environments in shaping, transforming and adjusting India's world in the past as well as in the contemporary world.

Learning Outcomes: The learners are educated that why India or for that matter every country needs foreign policy. They are expected to know the use of diplomacy and the various policy postures pronounced by India to deal with the highly dynamic world. It also aims to make students understand that how the security scenario of India was improved when it had limited military capability. This course equips the learners to grasp how India used diplomacy to secure its national interest, to mobilize capital and technology for its energy security, economic growth and prosperity. This knowledge will help them to relate India with the contemporary world.

Objectives of Course: This course is designed to engage the students in the comprehensive study of the fundamentals of the research, its types, functions and utility. This will provide a detailed knowledge about the scientific methods of conducting the research in Political Science. Its study will train the students to identify the research problem, reviewing the literature, and preparing the research design. Furthermore, it will provide the knowledge about the various methods, tools and techniques which are used for the data collection in the qualitative and quantitative research. The course also intends to educate the students about the nature sources of research, methods of data processing, displaying and analysis, process of report writing, different reference styles and prepare the bibliography. The course will also create awareness among the students regarding the legal and ethical issues of research including fabrication, falsification and plagiarism so that they can avoid involving in such misconducts while doing and publishing their research.

Learning Outcomes: After studying this course, students will be able to learn about the concept, objectives, functions and relevance of conducting the research in social sciences. They will be able to identify the research topic, formulate the research problem and hypotheses and also doing the review of existing studies so that relevant research gaps can be identified in the existing knowledge. They will also acquire the knowledge about the sampling techniques, methods and tools of data collection including surveys, observation and questionnaires. Besides, students will also know about the research ethics and legal aspects of conducting and publishing research.
